MANY AGES AGO, ON PREHISTORIC MOUSE ISLAND, THERE WAS A VILLAGE CALLED OLD MOUSE CITY. IT WAS INHABITED BY BRAVE RODENT SAPIENS KNOWN AS THE CAVEMICE.

DANGERS SURROUNDED THE MICE AT EVERY TURN: EARTHQUAKES, METEOR SHOWERS, FEROCIOUS DINOSAURS, AND FIERCE GANGS OF SABER-TOOTHED TIGERS. BUT THE BRAVE CAVEMICE FACED IT ALL WITH A SENSE OF HUMOR, AND WERE ALWAYS READY TO LEND A HAND TO OTHERS.

HOW DO I KNOW THIS? I DISCOVERED AN ANCIENT BOOK WRITTEN BY MY ANCESTOR, GERONIMO STILTONOOT! HE CARVED HIS STORIES INTO STONE TABLETS AND ILLUSTRATED THEM WITH HIS ETCHINGS.

I AM PROUD TO SHARE THESE STONE AGE STORIES WITH YOU. THE EXCITING ADVENTURES OF THE CAVEMICE WILL MAKE YOUR FUR STAND ON END, AND THE JOKES WILL TICKLE YOUR WHISKERS! HAPPY READING!

Geronimo Stilton

WARNING! DON'T IMITATE THE CAVEMICE.
WE'RE NOT IN THE STONE AGE ANYMORE!

METEOR SHOWER IN OLD MOUSE CITY!

Dawn fell over Old Mouse City, the great village of the CAVEHICE. (Well, we think it's great, anyway!)

The first rays of sunlight, as yellow as cheese, shone across the entrance to my cave. I had a full day of HARD work ahead of me — work as HARD as the stone I have to carve all day to write news articles.

But I, GERONIMO STILTONOOT, was still asleep in my cozy straw bed. I rolled on my side and continued to snore loudly.

Zzzzzzz snooooore zzzzzz

METEOR SHOWER IN OLD MOUSE CITY!

I was dreaming that I had won a battle against the FEROCIOUS saber-toothed tigers. Everyone was calling me a hero and showering me with grated cheese. Suddenly, a shriek as sharp as the claw of a T. rex shattered my eardrums:

"METEOR SHOWER COMING TO OLD MOUSE CITY!"

I recognized that shriek immediately: It was the weathersaurus, a dinosaur that predicts the weather.

A moment later, a tremendous thump shook the walls of my cave. Bam! Bam! Bam! This wasn't just a meteor shower — it was a meteor storm!

“Great rocky boulders!” I cried, jumping up. “This flying reptile makes useless predictions. He doesn't announce something until it's already happening!”

I leaned out of the entrance of my cave and saw the meteors falling like giant hailstones.

“Anyone could make predictions like that,” I grumbled.

Bam! Another meteor fell right in front of me, missing me by a whisker!

I tumbled BACKWARD, and the weathersaurus laughed at me.

“Close one!” he said. “And now that you’re done complaining, I’ll tell you my next prediction. There’s going to be an earthq —”

Before he could even finish the word, the ground started to SHAKE under my feet!

THE GREAT ZAP!

I ran back into my cave to save my precious knickknacks. With my left paw, I grabbed the RARE clay vase that my grandma Ratrock had given me. With my right paw, I grabbed the portrait of Clarissa Conjurat, the most fascinating mouse in the village. (I must admit, I am head over tail for her. But she doesn't know it — I'm very shy!)

My paws were full, but I still had more to grab!

With one foot, I grabbed my secret stash of seashells (cavemouse money), and with the other foot, my pet fish ROCKY'S bowl.

I was practically juggling!

From outside the cave, the weathersaurus squealed again. “Almost forgot. I’m also predicting a volcanic eruption!”

ARGH! A volcanic eruption was the last thing I needed.

I went outside and saw a river of sizzling lava flowing like hot cheese sauce down the street.

I had to watch my tail or it would get singed!

Then the weathersaurus had one last prediction: “Beware the Great —”

OH, NO! He couldn’t mean . . .

ZAP!

Just as I had feared, the Great Zap struck me.

Then the weathersaurus cheerfully flew away.

“Happy to be of help!” he called.

I shook my head at his nerve. Then I went back into my cave, whiskers SCORCHED and SMOKE coming out of my ears. To console myself, I went into the kitchen and prepared a lovely cheese omelette with a side of meat for breakfast. All that stress had made me hungry!

THE GREAT ZAP

The Great Zap is what the cavemice call a powerful flash of lightning. It was named when it once struck a tree and set it ablaze, which led the cavemice to discover fire.

AARGH!
The Great Zap!

OW! OW!
IT HURTS!

I sat down at the table and bit into my delicious cheese omelette, which I had made with some tasty swamp herbs. I reached for a glass of water, but then I remembered that the pipe connecting my cave to the nearest well was broken. So I settled for a horsetail* smoothie and a calming cup of fern* juice.

I felt like I needed a bath, but of course I couldn't take one without water. Also, it wasn't flea-picking day, the one day of the month when cavemice get clean.

* Horsetail and ferns are plants that existed in the prehistoric era and survive to the present day.

OW! OW! IT HURTS!

I brushed off my forest-green shirt and saw a big group of prehistoric fleas jumping all over it. It was Zif and Zaf and their 357 children.

I politely said hello to them, and they joyfully returned my greeting. (I've given up trying to chase them away — they always come back!)

Before leaving, I checked my will, just in case I became extinct that day.

Life in the Stone Age is very, very hard. As hard as GRANITE!

The meteor shower was still going on, so I grabbed my METEOR UMBRELLA. It is made of strong stone, and I staggered under its weight.

The meteor umbrella was the most recent creation of LEO EDISTONE, the village's inventor. He told me it would keep meteors off me perfectly.

I slowly walked through the streets of Old Mouse City while meteors of all sizes fell around me. Some were as tiny as a crumb of cheese, and some were as huge as a megalosaurus egg!

I noticed that all the other mice were Argh! Just missed me!

Oof! My stomach hurts!

Hurry! I feel sick!

Hurry hurry hurry!

Oh! Oh! Oh!

OW! OW! IT HURTS!

swiftly running down the village streets, and not just because of the meteors.

Everyone in Old Mouse City, in fact, was running to their caves, grabbing their stomachs, and moaning.

"Ow! Ow!"

"What a stomachache!"

"HAS THE GREAT PLAGUE RETURNED?"

What is going on? I wondered.

I wasn't able to ask anyone, though, because in the next moment, an enormous meteor fell right on my meteor umbrella! The umbrella smacked into my head and DROVE me into the ground like a hammer driving a nail.

I was stuck! This METEOR UMBRELLA was no good at all!

Great rocky boulders,
I was such a fool!

Leo Edistone had tricked me into buying one of his useless inventions! And to think I paid thirty seashells for it!

I wasn't going to let that crackpot inventor take advantage of me. I wanted my money back!

EDISTONE'S UNUSUAL INVENTIONS

As soon as I climbed out of the hole in the ground, I hurried to Leo Edistone's workshop with my meteor umbrella in my paw. On the street, I was stopped by a rodent who was distributing FLYERS for the new clinic run by the Club brothers. I took a look at the flyer. What great timing they had! The brothers must have already made a fortune off the stomachache epidemic.

My thoughts were interrupted by a loud CLANG! CLANG! CLANG! coming from Leo's workshop.

As I walked across the flimsy BRIDGE to his rickety home, the logs the bridge was made of started to move. I flailed my arms, trying to keep my balance, but I slipped! I fell into the WATER with a loud splash.

LEO EDISTONE

VILLAGE INVENTOR

HE IS THE BRILLIANT AND MISUNDERSTOOD INVENTOR
OF OLD MOUSE CITY.

HIS DREAM IS FOR HIS
INVENTIONS TO MAKE LIFE
EASIER FOR THE CAVEMICE.

HIS SECRET: HE ALWAYS
SMELLS A LITTLE LIKE WILD
ONIONS . . . BUT DON'T EVEN THINK ABOUT
MENTIONING IT TO HIM!

WILD ONION

Leo appeared at the entrance to his workshop. "Hey, Geronimo!" he called out. "Why are you swimming in my SWAMP?"

I shot him an angry look as I picked swampweed from my wet fur.

"I'll fish you out right away!" he yelled. He used a hook attached to the end of a branch to pluck me out of the muddy water and pull me into his dry workshop.

Leo is a thin mouse with a long, gray beard, and is always full of energy. His eyes sparkled as he asked me, "So, what do you think of my moving walkway?"

"MOVING WALKWAY?" I repeated, dumbfounded. "What is it, a device to get rid of unsatisfied customers?"

Leo shrugged. "Well, a moving walkway could transport people in an AIRPORT, when they have heavy LUGGAGE."

“Airport? Luggage? What are those?” I asked.

“New ideas!” he replied, his eyes twinkling again. “If those things already existed, my moving walkway would be very useful. Believe me, one day this will be useful to all kinds of mice, especially elderly rodents.”

My anger toward the inventor faded away. At heart, all he really wanted to do was improve the lives of others. So I decided not to ask for my seashells back.

Instead, I said, “I’ve come to return your meteor umbrella.”

“Why?” Leo asked, surprised.

“It doesn’t work!” I informed him. “When a meteor hit me, it POUNDED me into the ground. Maybe it's good for keeping off the rain, but that's about it."

Leo lit up. "Why, that's a great idea!" he said. "If I can make it LIGHTER, it would be perfect for shielding rodents from the rain. Geronimo, I ought to make you my assistant!"

"Um, no, thank you," I said quickly. "I'm very busy with my job at The Stone Gazette."

The inventor nodded. "Well, then, in exchange for the meteor umbrella, you can take any other invention you like!" he exclaimed. "Go on!"

Then he led me to his closet of inventions....

UNDERSTOOD BY CAVEMICE

NOW, THAT'S AN IDEA!

Leo proudly showed me his new inventions. I was impressed by the bricks of explosive dinosaur dung, which could be used to start a fire without WOOD.

“I sold this invention to a poor rodent who had never been warm the previous winter,” he said with a little sigh. Then his eyes got bright again as he pointed to a new shelf. “These inventions will help us DEFEND against the saber-toothed tigers. The bellows are full of skunk stink to assault their sensitive noses. The scratching powder will make them itch unbearably. And of course, this Superbean Concentrate powers our balloonosauruses.”

Then he moved to the other side of the closet, and his voice became sad. “This, on the other hand, is my closet of Not-Yet-Understood inventions. I cannot release them yet because the world is not ready to accept them!”

He got a dreamy look in his eyes. “I just hope that the day will come when all rodents will realize how useful these objects are.”

Then he handed me a strange STONE object.

“What do you think of this, eh?” he asked.

The object was a tall, narrow piece of stone stuck in the center of a round, flat STONE.

“Um, it’s amazing,” I said. “But what is it?”

“It’s a sundial, of course!” he cheerfully replied. “It tells time!”

“Tells time?” I repeated, confused. He shook his head sadly.

“Such a shame!” he sighed. “I was hoping that you, an intellectual mouse, would understand this invention!”

He frowned, thinking. “Hmm . . . hmm . . . I think I've got it! I have another invention to show you.”

He rummaged through the shelves, MUTTERING, “Where could I have put it?”

“Um, what are you looking for?” I asked.

“You’ll see,” he promised. “Aha! This is the perfection invention for you.”

He held out a block of thin, rectangular stones held together with strips of leather.

“It’s a stone book!” he exclaimed.

He passed me the book, but I fumbled it, and it dropped right on my foot!

“AAAAH!” I squealed. “That hurt!”

He looked disappointed. “You don’t want my book? Such a shame! Just think: You could carve something into it. You know, like recipes . . . or stories!”

“Stories?” I repeated, curious. “Like the ones our elders have told around the fire? What a wonderful idea!”

I took the heavy book, thanked Leo, and headed for The Stone Gazette. In the streets, a chorus of advertising squealers squawked loudly:

“Don’t worry about your stomachache!
Call the Club brothers and you’ll be back in good shape!”

SOUND THE TOM-TOM ALARM!

When I finally arrived at the offices of The Stone Gazette, not a single mouse was CHISELING away on the next issue. They were all home with a stomachache! Only my sister, Thea, was there, but she was about to go home sick, too.

As she was leaving, she noticed the object I was carrying. “What’s that?” she asked.

“It’s one of Edystone’s new inventions!” I responded proudly. “It’s called a ‘book.’ You can carve stories in it!”

“Stories? Like the ones our elders tell us?” Thea asked. “Why would we need to CARVE them down?”

“So that we don’t forget the stories that make us laugh and dream,” I replied. “Like that story Grandma Ratrock always tells about getting stuck in the pit of melted cheese. If we carve it into a book, we can read it again and again.”

“That’s an interesting idea,” she said, but then she turned pale.

“I feel sick, Geronimo.

Gotta go!”

SOUND THE TOM-TOM ALARM!

I went into my OFFICE and decided to test out Edystone's new invention by carving an article into it. Suddenly, the sound of the emergency tom-tom rang through the village!

TOM-TO-TOM! TOM-TO-TOM! TOM-TO-TOM!
TOM-TO-TOM! TOM-TO-TOM! TOM-TO-TOM!

It was an urgent message from our village leader, Ernest Heftymouse.

Here is the message:

"EMERGENCY! MEET IMMEDIATELY
IN SINGING STONE SQUARE! IF ANYONE ARRIVES LATE, I WILL TIE
YOUR TAIL IN A KNOT!"

I hurried out of The Stone Gazette offices and ran toward the square. I like my tail just the way it is, thank you!

I hope he makes it quick....

Ow! Ow!

My tummy hurts!

Attention, please, residents
of Old Mouse City ...

CONSIDER YOURSELF EXTINCT, GERONIMO!

In the square, everyone was moaning about how bad they felt.

“Ow, ow, ow!”

“My tummy hurts!”

“I haven’t been able to eat anything all day!”

“ME, NEITHER!”

The village leader, Ernest Heftymouse, addressed the crowd.

“Citizens!” he declared. “We have an EMERGENCY! Every last mouse in the village has a stomachache!”

I raised my paw. “Actually, I’m just fine.”
Everyone gathered around me, shocked.

"YOU'RE NOT SICK? REALLY?"

The chief and his wife, Chattina, came up to me. Ernest poked me in the stomach. "Hmm, strange," he muttered. "Why aren't you sick?"

I shrugged apologetically. "Um . . . I have no idea!"

Ernest turned to the crowd.

“Residents of Old Mouse City!” he began again. “An unknown danger is threatening us. This stomachache could make us all extinct! But don’t worry, I have an idea!”

“Hooray!” exclaimed the villagers.

Ernest raised a paw in the air. “We will call on our shaman, Bluster Conjurat!”

“Waaaaaah!” the cavemice wailed in disappointment. Our shaman is often not very helpful.

Bluster Conjurat SLOWLY made his way through the crowd. The elderly rodent had gray fur, a wrinkled face, and a very long WHITE beard. In his right paw, he held a STICK with three colorful shells attached to the top.

Everyone moved out of his way and exchanged nervous looks.

“Shaman Bluster Conjurat!” Ernest addressed him. “In your great wisdom, what do you suggest that we do?”

The shaman waved his arms and spoke in a mysterious voice. “I, SHAMANBLUSTER CONJURAT, I see . . . I see . . . that if we don’t do something soon, we’ll all go extinct!”

Chattina Heftymouse impatiently stomped her foot. “We already knew that!”

A murmur went through the crowd.

“SILENCE!” Bluster shouted. “Or THE GREAT ZAP will strike you all! I see . . . I see . . . a mouse that doesn’t have a stomachache . . .”

Chattina snorted. “We already knew that, too! It’s GERONIMO STILTONOOT!”

The shaman shuffled up to me, squinted, and then pointed. “Yes! He is that mouse. He is the chosen one who will save us!”

“Chosen one?” I repeated with disbelief. That didn’t sound good. “Um . . . what do you mean, ‘chosen one’?”

Conjurat stomped his walking stick on the ground and made his next pronouncement very loudly.

“Since you are the only one who is not sick, you are the only one who can complete a DANGEROUS MISSION. You must find . . .”

Everyone held their breath.

“The recipe for the potion that will cure the Great Stomachache!”

CONSIDER YOURSELF EXTINCT, GERONIMO!

The crowd gasped.

“Now come to my cave so I can prepare you for your MISSION,” Bluster told me.

I tried to slip away, but Chattina grabbed me by the ear to drag me back to Bluster. “Where do you think you’re going?” she asked.

My friends all felt sorry for me. They knew I was heading into DANGER.

“Poor Geronimo . . .”

“We love you so much!”

“You’ve always been so good to us!”

Even my friend Hercule Poirat, the famous detective, was sobbing on my behalf.

The worry of my friends made me even more afraid. I headed to Bluster’s cave with trembling paws.

THE SHAMAN'S CAVE

I was so anxious about going that Chattina had to push me into Bluster's CAVE. Inside, the air was damp and heavy, with the strong smell of medicinal herbs.

As soon as my eyes got used to the darkness, I noticed a fire pit in the center of the cave. Baskets full of berries, seeds, and dried flowers hung from the ceilings. Strange CEREMONIAL masks decorated the walls.

Get in there!

Ugh!

Suddenly, a lighted TORCH appeared right in front of me, and I felt a paw brush against my face.

“There you are, finally,” someone said in a whisper.

“Ahhh!” I screamed. “Wh—who are you? A ghost?”

“Don’t be such a scaredy-mouse,” the voice scolded me.

The torch moved aside, and I saw before me the most beautiful face in the entire village. It belonged to Clarissa, the intelligent and charming daughter of the shaman.

Clarissa looked at me with eyes as GRAY as stone and deep as the STORMY sky.

“Geronimo, are you happy I’m here, too?”

My legs felt as wobbly as a bowl of cheese custard. I could barely speak!

Clarissa Conjurat

EYES: GRAY AS STONE

HAIR: PINK AND FLOWING

PERSONALITY: DETERMINED AND FIRM, BUT AS SWEET AS CHEESECAKE. SHE ALWAYS GETS WHAT SHE WANTS.

HOBBY: IN HER FREE TIME, SHE TAMES WILD DINOSAURS.

PET PEEVE: SHE HATES BAD SMELLS, SO SHE SPRAYS EVERYTHING WITH LILY WATER!

I was so nervous I started breaking out in red and white spots, as if I were a dinosaur with measles.

“Y-yes, I’m h-happy you’re here, Clarissa,” I stammered.

I tried to politely kiss her paw, but she gave me a very firm handshake instead. WHAT A RODENT!

Then the shaman walked into the cave.

“Ahem!” Bluster said with a cough. “My dear victim . . . I mean, CHOSEN ONE. Let us begin!”

“As a shaman, I can see things no cavemouse could ever imagine,”

Bluster continued. Then he winked at me.

“For example, I can see from the look on your face that you admire my daughter, Clarissa.”

I blushed, and he laughed.

“Ha, ha! But I don’t need special powers to see that you two are not right for each other. She’s as tough as GRANITE, while you are as soft as melted cheese.”

My whiskers drooped: He was right. I would never win over Clarissa!

“However, there may be one way to impress my daughter,” Bluster said, LEANING close to whisper to me. “If you can complete your MISSION — without going extinct, of course — she just might notice you!”

Then he looked at his daughter. “Clarissa, what do you think of our CHOSEN ONE?" he asked. "Will he return alive?"

She looked me over from the tips of my whiskers to the end of my tail. Then she gave my arm a squeeze.

"Well, he doesn't have much in the way of MUSCLES," she declared. "But he's very smart, and that might help him succeed."

She picked up a bowl of Strange green liquid, dipped a finger into it, and spread the muck on my face.

"There! A little bit of sweet lily water for you. I love LILIES!" she said. Then she sniffed the air and frowned. "I think your moldy prehistoric fur needs a double dose."

And with that, she dumped the entire contents of the bowl on my head.

I was speechless. I was covered from head to tail with the sticky green goop!

But the last thing I wanted to do was argue with Clarissa, so I simply gave her a big, goofy smile.

Bluster approached and waved his arms. “It is time, Chosen One, to go to the Cave of Memories. There you will find the secret recipe for the potion that will cure the Great Stomachache. The recipe is hidden in the most mysterious and dangerous part of the cave.”

“Dad, no rodent has ever returned alive from the cave!” Clarissa protested. “And this chosen one doesn’t even have any MUSCLES!”

“Don’t worry,” the shaman replied, “I’ll strengthen him with one of my potions. Let’s see, I’ll need some codfish scales and some STINGING NETTLE powder, but what’s that last ingredient?”

He fumbled through the jars on his shelves. “Maybe it was cave-bear fur, or tears of a toad, or BAT BONES,” he muttered. Finally, he threw up his paws. “Oh, well, we’ll just let the victim . . . I mean, the chosen one . . . taste it, and we’ll see what effect it has!”

I watched Buster throw handfuls of smelly herbs and powders into a bowl. I had no intention of drinking any potion of his, but he pinched my snout and forced a spoonful of the disgusting stuff down my throat.

“Drink up!” he ordered.

I LIKE . . . YOU!

I started to feel itchy right away. Then my whole body started blowing up like a Balloon!

Bluster shook his head. “How strange!” he muttered. “Victim . . . I mean, Chosen One . . . I will make you a new potion!”

With that, he gave me one NEW potion after another, watching each time to see what would happen.

“Well, do you feel STRONGER?” he asked.
“No? Oh, well. I wonder what’s missing from this disgusting brew . . . I mean, this miraculous potion . . . Let me try a new mix.”

He was never going to get it right!

Finally, before he could make me gulp down something else, I pushed away and yelled, “NO MORE POTIONS!”

I felt better. Much, much better. And as STRONG as a cave bear!

Clarissa gave me a pat on the back so hard it would have knocked over a T. REX.

“Well done, Chosen One!” she exclaimed. “I like these traits on you. You’re BRAVE . . . adventurous . . . and smelling like a flower!”

I couldn’t believe my ears. Had she really said, “I like . . . you”? Okay, so maybe she didn’t exactly say, “Geronimo, I like you,” but it was pretty close.

Bluster Conjurat had known exactly how to get me to accept his mission. Just the thought that Clarissa might like me was enough to send me heading into terrible DANGER!

“C-Clarissa,” I stammered. “Maybe when we come back from this mission, you could join me for some cheese fondue.”

“I prefer a nice hunk of roasted meat,” she replied. “But anyway, I’m not sure that you will come back from this mission!”

My heart sank. “I shouldn’t have asked.”

Then she winked at me. “If you do survive the cave, I’ll think about it,” she said. “I do like reading your newspaper.”

She liked reading my newspaper! What a compliment! My heart was flying higher than a balloonosaurus.

Bluster shoved a map into my hands.

“Go, oh Chosen One! And return with the recipe!”

I took the MAP, and Clarissa and I left the cave. We were saying good-bye when a giant paw GRABBED me by the tail. It was the paw of Harriet Heftymouse, the daughter of the village chief.

“My dear Geronimo-mo!” she chirped. “You are so brave to leave on such a dangerous mission. Remember that a delicate and defenseless mouse will be awaiting your return.”

“Who are you talking about?” I asked, perplexed.

“Me, of course!” she squeaked.

Geronimo-mo!

Harriet Heftymouse

I thought that maybe the Great Stomachache was affecting Harriet's mind. Delicate and defenseless? She is much STRONGER than I am!

Clarissa looked curious. "Are you two dating?" she asked.

I blushed. I barely knew Harriet, and I didn't go out on a lot of dates. I am always too busy working at The Stone Gazette.

"No, no!" I answered.

Then Ernest Heftymouse arrived and squeezed me in a suffocating hug.

"What a fine son-in-law you'll make, Chosen One!" he said.

Son-in-law? Harriet and I weren't even dating. Who said anything about marriage?

"You can live in our CAVE," Ernest went on. "It's the finest in the village! And I'll give you a new club, too. What do you say?"

I was about to protest when Chattina ran up.

"You'll be such a wonderful part of the family," she gushed. "And I've already thought of your wedding present. A cheese sculpture of you and your lovely bride! Won't that be marvelous?"

"Everybody stop!" I yelled. "There's not going to be a wedding! I do not want to marry Harriet!"

Unfortunately, no one heard me, because everyone's stomachache had suddenly returned. They all ran off quickly.

I was finally alone!

Then a paw whacked me on the back, and I heard a familiar voice. “Cousin!”

I turned, surprised. “Trap? I thought you were on vacation!”

A VERY DANGEROUS MISSION!

My cousin Trap took me by the arm. “I was on vacation, but I just returned,” he explained happily. “And just in time to learn about your MISSION. The whole VILLAGE is talking about it!”

I'll come with you!

I sighed. “Yeah, I’m STUCK doing it. And now I really need to get going, and . . .”

Trap didn't let me finish.

"This Great Stomachache is bad for business at my Rotten Tooth Tavern," Trap went on, "so I decided I might as well go with you. Speaking of which, WHERE exactly are we going?"

I looked at the sky and sighed, defeated. Whenever Trap gets involved, things usually become a mess. But I reluctantly agreed to him coming. I know that when Trap gets an idea into his head, it's impossible to make him change his mind!

"I need to go to this MYSTERIOUS cave," I explained. "See, the route is marked here."

I unrolled the MAP that Buster had drawn on a banana leaf for me. When I started to read the terrifying names of the places I would need to cross, I turned as pale as mozzarella!

1. OLD MOUSE CITY: start!
2. PREHISTORIC VOLCANO: danger of roasting!
3. WILD DINOSAUR PLAIN: danger of sharp claws!
4. MOSQUITO SWAMP: danger of swarm attack!
5. DESERT OF GIANT SCORPIONS: danger of stinging!

6. WERE-BAT LAIR: danger of fangs!
7. SHIFTING SANDS: danger of sinking!
8. TIGER CAMP: danger of being eaten!
9. FOGGY PASS: danger of getting lost!
10. CAVE OF MEMORIES: danger unknown!

Shifting sands? Giant scorpions? Were-bats? Wild dinosaurs?

So scary!

“GREAT ROCKY BOULDERS,
WE COULD GO EXTINCT
ON THIS MISSION!” I

exclaimed.

Trap shrugged his shoulders. “Eh, they’re just rumors,” he said.

“You’ll see, when we return to Old Mouse City with the cure for the Great Stomachache, we’ll be greeted as heroes!”

Before leaving, we stopped at my cave to get some supplies. I grabbed my club for protection and then packed some provisions: hard cheese, soft cheese, CHEESE sticks, CHEESE wheels, cheese bread, dried berries and cheese, and some meat with cheese sauce.

Finally, I packed a hollow GOURD filled with fern juice (since my water pipes were still broken). It was going to be a long journey.

I gave one last look at my cozy cave and sighed.

Then I left to meet my destiny . . . and, perhaps, my extinction!

DOUBLE LOAD, DOUBLE DOSE!

My AUTOSAURUS was parked on the street in front of my cave. Trap and I jumped on board, but he immediately tossed us off.

“I won’t do it!” the dinosaur protested. “For a double load, I need a double dose of my Superfruit Smoothie!”

I knew I had to give in or he wouldn’t take us anywhere. Fortunately, I had a good supply of his smoothie stored up.

He slurped it down in an instant, and then we climbed into the saddle. He reared up on his hind legs and took off at a GALLOP.

We quickly crossed the empty city and passed the anti-tiger FENCE. Then we followed the shaman's map outside the city limits — and into UNKNOWN TERRITORY.

Remember all those DANGERS I saw on the map? Well, we soon found out that they weren't just rumors. They were all true!

DOUBLE LOAD, DOUBLE DOSE!

The volcano's lava nearly roasted us.

Then a herd of very hungry wild T. REXES chased us, trying to chomp our tails.

“Quick! Throw them some food!” I yelled.

It was a good plan. The dinos began to fight among themselves as they all tried to devour it.

Then we got to the swamp, and the meat-eating mosquitoes started to bite our ears. We fought them off with our clubs. Then the giant scorpions tried to pinch the legs of my autosaurus, but he ran away.

“Hey, Cousin,” Trap said. “Are we through the danger?”

Gulp!

I checked the map. “Oh, no! We’re entering the lair of the were-bats!”

As soon as the words left my mouth, a swarm of were-bats dove at us! We ran, sinking into the smelly swamp. Luckily, the bats fainted from the stinky smell!

We crawled out of the swamp, dripping, and another terrible surprise awaited us: a pack of fierce SABER-TOOTHED TIGERS! They chased us along a narrow path on top of a cliff, high above the sea. "DIVE!" I yelled.

The autosaurus dove off the cliff, and we all splashed into the sea. Luckily, my autosaurus is an AMPHIBIAN— he can move on the ground and in the water. He paddled through the water, and we landed safely on the beach.

I was lucky that I had chosen a multipurpose model of autosaurus. He had saved us from early extinction!

Exhausted from all of the danger, I fainted. I soon woke up because my autosaurus was licking my face. I hugged him, thinking he was showing me some affection, but he shrugged me off.

“I just wanted to be sure you were awake,” he said. “I need a triple dose of Superfruit Smoothie after all this running and swimming!”

“Welcome back to the living, Cousin,” Trap interrupted. “Now, I have good news and BAD NEWS. Which do you want to hear first?”

“The good news,” I replied. “I need to hear something positive!”

Trap grinned. “The good news is that we’ve finally reached the cave!”

“Then what’s the BAD NEWS?” I asked.

“The BAD NEWS is . . . right in front of us!” Trap said, pointing.

Welcome, strangers!

Argh!

WHAT'S THE PASSWORD?

An enormous CAVE BEAR was sleeping in front of the cave. Trembling, we tiptoed past it, but I stepped on a branch.

SNAP! The sound woke the bear, who growled at us threateningly.

His eyes were red with fury.

Good Fluffy!

Then we heard a voice.

"DOWN, FLUFFY!"

The guardian of the cave, a grizzled rodent with a long beard, was perched on a rock.

"Relax, my Fluffy won't bite,” the guardian said. “At least, not unless I ask him to. Ha, ha!”

“Please let us pass,” I said, a little nervously. “We are on a mission and need to enter the cave.”

The guardian raised an eyebrow. “You may enter — if you know the password.”

Password? I started to panic. “Please, just let us enter!” I begged. “Old Mouse City is suffering from the Great Stomachache.”

I am the chosen one, and I need to find the recipe for the cure.”

The guardian shook his head.
“What’s the password? If you don’t know it, I will have to set Fluffy on you! He’s very HUNGRY. He hasn’t eaten in days.”

Fluffy drooled, thinking about his next meal — us!

“Concentrate, Cousin!” Trap squealed.

“Try to think of the password!”

I closed my eyes and tried to think (which isn’t easy to do with a hungry cave bear drooling in front of you!).

I tried to remember everything the shaman had said to me. Bluster hadn’t mentioned a password at all.

“That SILLY SHAMAN!” I shrieked.
“When I get back — if I get back — I’ll give him a piece of my mind!”

I had to do something, so I started to shout out random words. “Cave! Swamp! Great rocky boulders! Coconut head!”

The guardian shook his shaggy head once again. “No, that’s not it! I guess I’ll have to release Fluffy. . . .”

Trap nudged me. “Come on, say it! What are you waiting for? The next ICE AGE?”

But the guardian had already signaled to Fluffy. The cave bear moved toward us, growling. . . .

Terrified, I shouted, “Bluster said nothing about a password. Nothing!”

The hermit looked surprised. “What did you say? Did you say ‘nothing’? Well done! That’s the password!”

Trap and I looked at each other, confused. But at least we were safe.

"DOWN, FLUFFY!" the guardian commanded. "Stay away from the chosen one!"

But the order came too late. CHOMP! Fluffy bit the TIP OF MY TAIL, itching for a taste of the meal that he was missing.

"Bad Fluffy!" the hermit scolded.

Thankfully, Fluffy then climbed back on top of his rock, pouting.

The guardian gave each of us — including Fluffy — a lit torch.

“Follow me,” he said.

We obeyed, keeping a safe distance from Fluffy (we still didn't trust him) as the rodent led us into the Cave of Memories. We walked down a set of stone stairs and found ourselves in an enormous grotto. Torchlight danced across the walls as we gazed around in awe.

The walls and stone columns were PAINTED with scenes of typical activities of the CAVEMICE: running from dinosaurs, riding on the backs of mammoths, battling tigers . . .

PETRIFIED CHEESE, WHAT AN INCREDIBLE PLACE!

Wow!

Follow me!

DOWN, DOWN, DOWN . . .

We began to explore the cave, following the MAP that Bluster had given me. In the Room of Cave Paintings, all of the most IMPORTANT MOMENTS in the history of Old Mouse City had been painted:

THE FIRST STRIKE OF
THE GREAT ZAP

THE BIRTH OF THE TWINS WHO FOUNDED
THE CITY

THE DISCOVERY OF THE STONE OF FIRE

THE ATTACK OF TIGER KHAN'S HORDE

Then we admired the portraits of the Heftymouse dynasty, which for generations have been leaders of Old Mouse City.

DOWN, DOWN, DOWN . . .

As we left the Room of Cave Paintings, the ground began to shake.

“Quick! Let’s get out of here before everything collapses!” Trap squealed.

The guardian and Fluffy had already taken off, and we followed them. But a LANDSLIDE of rocks crashed down, blocking the exit! We were TRAPPED!

“HEEEELP!” I yelled. “We’re trapped!”

“Well, at least we’re not alone in here with Fluffy,” Trap said with a laugh.

I found myself laughing, too. “Thanks, Trap. This is what friends are for: making the best of a bad situation!”

Just then, I noticed a wind was causing the torch FLAME to lean to the right. If there was wind, then there had to be another exit!

Our spirits were lifted as we followed the stream of air to a staircase. We walked up the steps and into the Hall of Shamans’ Secrets!

I shone the torch against the wall, and there it was: the recipe we needed for the cure! I began to carefully chisel a copy into my STONE NOTEBOOK.

I finished chiseling and stepped back from the wall. But as soon as my paw touched the ground, I realized that there was no ground — I had stepped into a huge hole! Trap reached out to grab me, but we both fell down, down, down. . . .

Heeeeeeelp!

Splash!

We landed in icy water. We had fallen down a well! My poor whiskers FROZE from the cold.

AHHHHHHHHHHH!

The stream carried us into a dark TUNNEL. Then the stream became a rushing
WATERFALL!

We plunged over the falls and landed in a peaceful underground lake. With the last of our strength, we swam to a small,
rocky beach.
We flopped onto the shore, finally able to rest.

As we caught our breath, a pale light and the sound of two voices drifted from a tunnel carved into the rock wall next to us.

HOW STRANGE!

Who could it be?

And HOW in the name of cheese did they get here?

We crept into the tunnel and hid behind a boulder to get a better look. I motioned to Trap to stay silent. There, in the light of flickering torches, we could see the faces of the two mysterious mice: It was the Club brothers, the owners of the famous clinic!

WHAT WERE THEY DOING HERE?

The brothers stood at the edge of the underground lake, pouring horrible-looking goo into the water.

DOWN, DOWN, DOWN . . .

How strange! I sniffed the air, and recognized the smell — it was prehistoric prune juice!

Then we heard them laughing. “Ha, ha, ha! Now everyone will have an even worse stomachache than we gave them before,” said Shifty Club. “They’ll think Bluster Conjurat is a FOOL, and they’ll get tired of waiting for the chosen one to return from his MISSION.”

Shady Club laughed. “Hee, hee, hee! He probably won’t return anyway. Few ever escape the Cave of Memories alive.”

“And then everyone will have to come to the Club Brothers’ Clinic to be cured!” said Shifty, greedily rubbing his paws together.

Trap was so angry that he was ready to jump out of the hiding spot to confront them. But I held him back. If we were quiet and followed them, we could find the EXIT!

What scoundrels!

My brain sprang into action as we followed the two scoundrels through the UNDERGROUND passageway.

Think, think, think . . .

After a little while, I started to get a headache — we cavemice get tired after thinking too much! But everything soon became clear:

1 The Cave of Memories seemed to be CONNECTED to Old Mouse City by tunnel.

2 All the WATER in the village came from this underground lake.

3 The Club brothers came from Old Mouse City and poured prune juice into the water, so they were responsible for the Great Stomachache!

4 With Trap's help, I had completed my mission and found the recipe for the cure. But we had also discovered the ROTTEN RODENTS behind this epidemic!

5 When I returned to Old Mouse City, I would be greeted as a hero. Surely that would impress Clarissa Conjurat, the most fascinating rodent in the village!

I was still daydreaming when Trap gave me a pinch and brought me back to my senses.

“WAKE UP, COUSIN, this isn’t the time for dreaming!” he said.

Trap was right!

Up ahead, the Club brothers were exiting the cave, disappearing into the night. We followed, making sure they didn’t see us. Just as I had guessed, this tunnel had led us right to Old Mouse City.

I took a deep breath of the fresh night air and gazed at the starry sky. How wonderful to be outside and home again!

Trap gave me another pinch. “WAKE UP, COUSIN!”

“Sorry, Trap. I guess the stars are making me feel romantic right now,” I said.

Whoops! Did I say that out loud?

Trap started to make fun of me. “You’re

How wonderful to see the stars!

in love! Your heart is softer than cream cheese, Cousin! Who is it? Do I know her?”

I tried to deny it, but my ears turned as red as burning lava.

“No, I’m not in love,” I protested. “And if I were, I wouldn’t tell you who it is! Everyone at the Rotten Tooth Tavern would know. And that Sally Rockmousen would announce it on her Gossip Radio show! Everyone would know that I have an enormouse crush on Clariss —”

I clapped a paw over my mouth, but it was too late.

I’m not sure if Trap figured it out. He didn’t say anything, but he gave me a sly look.

I quickly tried to distract him. “That’s enough gossip!” I exclaimed. “We have a MISSION to complete! The only reason I didn't get sick today is because my water pipe was broken. So we must WARN the city: No one can drink the water that is piped into Old Mouse City until it has been cleaned up."

"How can we warn them all?" Trap asked.

"Go quickly, and wake up all our relatives, all your friends, and all of my employees at The Stone Gazette!" I told him. "Tell them to bring their CHISELS!"

Trap ran off, and soon I had a small army of rodents working with me. We chiseled all night long!

By morning, every well and WATER source in the city had a sign on it: DON'T DRINK! TAINTED WATER!

Then I took the recipe for the cure to Bluster Conjurat.

"There is a spring outside the city that hasn't been tainted," I told him. "You should make the chamomile tea with that.”

“Thank you, Chosen One!” he said. “You were brilliant!”

I looked around the shaman’s cave, hoping that Clarissa had heard that compliment. But his lovely daughter was nowhere in sight.

So much for romance, I thought, and then yawned. I was exhausted! I went back to my cave for a good night’s sleep.

HEAD OVER TAIL IN LOVE!

The next morning, I woke up to the sound of Gossip Radio.

“Geronimo Stiltonoot is in love with a mysterious rodent!” Sally Rockmousen was shrieking.

Ah, so Trap had spilled the beans! He'll never change, I thought. But at least he hadn't heard me say Clarissa's name.

Then there was a knock on the door, and the entire Heftymouse family burst into my cave.

"Who is this mysterious rodent?" Harriet asked. "Is it me?"

This was awkward. "It's just gossip!" I protested. "I'm not in love with anybody!"

"Well, I'm not in love with you, either!" Harriet said with a sniff.

Ernest Heftymouse was furious. "THE WEDDING IS OFF!"

he announced.

What a relief! I thought. Then the pounding of the village drums interrupted us.

“Everyone come quickly!” a rodent was shouting. “The shaman has prepared a potion that will cure the Great Stomachache!”

I raced to Singing Rock Square, where I saw the Club brothers standing in front of a pot of Bluster’s potion.

“Cavemice, don’t trust Bluster! His cure for the Great Stomachache won’t work!” squealed Shifty Club. “Come to our clinic. Only we can cure you! And it only costs one hundred seashells per rodent!”

I jumped in front of them, furious. “You Stone-Age scoundrels! May the Great Zap strike your tails!” I yelled.

The whole village was listening. “You two made everyone sick!” I went on. “Yesterday, my cousin Trap and I saw you —”

Shady Club interrupted me. “Oh, yes? And how will you prove that we polluted the springs?”

I grinned. Shady Club had just confessed without realizing it!

Shifty Club BOPPED his brother on the head. “Quiet, you fool!” You almost revealed all the details of our plan!”

But the angry residents of Old Mouse City had heard enough. They took out their clubs and chased the Club brothers out of town. Those brothers didn’t show their WHISKERS again for a long time!

Then the citizens celebrated my triumph. “LONG LIVE GERONIMO!” they cheered. “Long live the chosen one! Long live the hero of Old Mouse City!”

Harriet Heftymouse looked at me and sighed. “I’ve decided to forgive you, Geronimo. I’ll marry you after all!”

I took off running.

“Excuse me, I really need to go now,” I shouted behind me. “I have a very IMPORTANT appointment!”

I ran to my OFFICE and shut myself in. I wanted to preserve this incredible story forever, so I CHISELED it into Leo Edistone’s new invention — the stone book!

It was the perfect invention for a storyteller like me:
